Sealite Appoints Bassim Oshiba to Strategic Account Manager for North America

Tilton, New Hampshire – October 3, 2019 – Bassim Oshiba has been named Strategic Account Manager for North America-Marine.

Bassim joins Sealite with more than a decade of progressive project management, business development and targeted engineering support in the Aid to Navigation (AtoN) business. He is a recognized technical expert in the field of AtoN products and technology, and brings a strong professional background and highly targeted account management experience to his new role.

Sealite Americas Sales Manager Jason Larrere stated, “Bassim will help Sealite develop new and grow existing business relationships as well as support to our USA and Canadian government customers. Our customers will benefit from his AtoN knowledge, technical skills and regulatory knowledge.”

Bassim has a degree in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Houston and a Certificate in Project Management. He will assume his new role following intensive product training in Sealite USA’s New Hampshire headquarters.
